

ALABAMA GOES DRY

Senate Passes House Bill for Prohibition.

WOMEN TAKE PART IN FIGHT

Old Confederate Capitol Crowded with Temperance Workers When Final Vote Was Taken—Only Two Senators Go on Record Against Bill Which Goes Into Effect in 1909.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 19.—There has been no such enthusiasm manifested in the historic halls of the old Confederate capitol since the time of the Confederate Congress as there was to-day when the senate passed the house general prohibition bill, with only two senators, Hamner and Spraggins, voting against it. The cheers of the crowd of men, women, and school children who had crowded into every available space, could be heard in every part of the capitol. So great was the cheering and applause the house, across the hall, had to adjourn as no business could be transacted.

Every train bearing in delegations of women who were in favor of the bill. Mobile was the only place to send two delegations, one favoring and one opposed. There was strong opposition from Mobile because that was the only county in the State which retained all of its whiskey license tax, and this went to the public schools.

When the women favoring prohibition heard that Mobile was to have an anti-prohibition delegation of women, they rushed to the capitol at an early hour and captured all the seats, and when the "ants" arrived they had to stand in the rear, and their cheers could hardly be heard.

All for Prohibition. Every person who went into the senate chamber was approached by school children and women, who pinned white ribbons on them, and who also pinned long streamers bearing the words, "Prohibition for all Alabama."

The doors of the senate were thrown wide open, and the spectators crowded into the lobby, and once on the inside none could get out. The anti-prohibitionists early acknowledged their defeat when Senator Thomas arose and asked for ten minutes' recess, as there was an agreement pending. Senator Lusk, for the prohibitionists, stated that there was no necessity for a recess, as the agreement had been reached to amend the bill to put it into effect January 1, 1909, and that the "ants" would not fight the bill and bills accompanying it to see that the law was enforced.

There was some opposition to the agreement by the strong prohibitionists, Senator Leith and Senator Lowe objecting, stating that the bill should go into effect October 1, 1908, as passed by the house. "I have never heard of a successful compromise with the devil yet," declared Senator Leith, amid the cheers and applause of the crowd.

Several persons who were aroused by the noise of the shooting also saw the man being carried around the corner. The police have been searching the city for the supposed wounded man, but have not been able to find him.

After the shooting Mrs. Demer phoned the police station: "If you find a dead man, I killed him."

Cleveland, Nov. 19.—That Congressman Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, has had no orders from the White House surging his expression of sentiment favorable to the nomination of Secretary Taft for the Presidency by the Republican National Convention next year, was indicated by a telegram he sent to-night to John J. Sullivan, United States District Attorney here, conveying a message to the diners at the big Garfield Club banquet in Warren, Ohio. The telegram reads:

"Give my best compliments to members of the Garfield Club. Wish I could be with you; my toast would be 'the next President of the United States: a son of Ohio.'"

CLAIMS DUCE CONFESSED

Woman Witness in Famous Case Then Faints on Stand.

London, Nov. 19.—When the case of Herbert Druce, accused of perjury, came up before Judge Plowden again to-day in the Marylebone police court, plaintiff's counsel, Mr. Atterley-Jones, reattempted to introduce a copy of the diary, Mary Robinson says was recently stolen from her in the street, but Judge Plowden adhered to his ruling of yesterday, and held that the copy was inadmissible.

Miss Robinson then continued her evidence, which was interrupted by adjournment yesterday. She told how, in 1870, she traveled to various towns with T. C. Druce, who, on that occasion, left the town of Worsnop in order to avoid a Dutchman named Vansche, who knew Druce to be the Duke of Portland, and wanted money of him.

Charles Dickens, in the same year, she said, told her that Druce and the duke were the same person. She afterwards attempted to repeat to Druce what Dickens had said, but Druce refused to listen to it. Subsequently, at Nottingham, Druce confessed, she said, that he was the Duke of Portland, and said that he had married twice in that name and had children by both wives. He said he had married below his station, and had continued to use the name of Druce for family reasons. He said the first marriage was a boy and girl marriage.

Miss Robinson said she parted from the Duke of Portland after a disagreement, in Aberdeen, in 1876. He paid what she had earned before they parted.

Miss Robinson fainted on the witness stand, and in consequence the court adjourned at an earlier hour than usual.

BOXING ALLOWED IN IOWA.

But No More Bouts Will Be Permitted in Indiana.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Boxers in the West will be compelled to confine themselves to Milwaukee and Davenport, Iowa, for purses in the future, as Indiana, a good State for contests, has been wiped off the pugilistic map. Gov. Manly, of that State, has ordered the sheriff and police superintendents to prevent prize fights in the future, declaring that he will render any assistance if necessary.

Indianapolis and Fort Wayne, Ind., have been regarded first-class boxing towns for several years. Many bouts of local importance have taken place in those towns because of their easy access from Chicago. Packey McFarland, Benny Yanger, Kid Herman, Jimmy Gardner, and many other boxers known to local fame have fought in those places and drew hundreds of fans from Chicago.

With Indiana out of it, Milwaukee and Davenport will be given the opportunity to conduct weekly contests, although it is said that the game in Davenport is transitory. McFarland and Herman box in Davenport November 21, but are cautious in the manner in which they advertise the show. Milwaukee still holds as strong as ever and will go along holding bouts as long as there are first-class men to furnish the amusement.

Cats as Plague Preventers.

From the Lancet.

Lieut. Col. A. Buchanan, I. M. S., contributes under the above heading an interesting letter to a correspondence in the Times of India respecting plague prevention. After referring to the prejudice against rat killing which is felt by the natives in many districts, and which makes the use of traps and poison for the purpose difficult or objectionable, the writer proceeds to show that the object in view may be better attained by encouraging the keeping of cats. The value of the cat in plague prevention has not yet, he says, been sufficiently recognized.

TAKE UP BOND ISSUE

New York Banks Apply for New Certificates.

MONEY WILL BE SENT WEST

Most of the $25,000,000 to be Taken Up in the East Likely to Be Used in Moving Crops—Liberal Subscriptions to the New Panama Bonds. Plan to Be a Simple One.

New York, Nov. 19.—Some of the national banks in this city completed to-day arrangements to apply for allotments of the government $100,000,000 3 per cent certificates, and to take out new circulation to the amount of the certificates immediately on the approval of their applications.

In some sections of the financial district to-day there was confusion regarding the certificates plan. In the case of New York banks it is not probable that the amount of the purchase money will be left on deposit here or re-deposited here. As was stated in the official announcement from Washington, the greatest need for currency is felt to be in the financial centers of the crop districts, and very likely most of the $25,000,000 or more paid by New York banks for the certificates will be deposited in the West and Southwest, rather than here. It is the understanding, however, that practically all of the entire $100,000,000, which will be paid in in case the entire issue is subscribed, will be deposited in banks throughout the country. There is no intention, in other words, of withdrawing from circulation the money paid for the certificates.

Plan a Simple One.

The deposits of the money paid for the certificates must, of course, be secured by national banks in the same way as other government deposits are secured. It is around this point, strangely enough, that much of the confusion in the financial district regarding the certificates center. The procedure is simple enough. Banks will give as security for these deposits the same class of securities—that is, municipal, railroad, and other bonds approved by the Treasury Department—that they have been giving as security for other deposits. The strange and entirely erroneous idea prevailed in some quarters to-day that the certificates would themselves secure the deposit of the purchase money paid for them.

The certificates will be entirely free for use as security for circulation. Most of the New York banks which will subscribe for them have national bank notes already printed in Washington, and will thus be able to secure new circulation immediately on the approval of their applications.

Local bankers will also subscribe liberally to the Panama bonds. Individual subscriptions to the certificates were made at the Subtreasury to-day.

The premium on currency remained unchanged to-day at the reduced rates of 100 to 101. Generally, money brokers paid from 1½ to 2½ per cent for currency and sold between 2 and 2½ per cent.

FAVOR INLAND WATERWAYS.

Solution of Transportation Problem Offered at Conference.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—The inland waterways conference which has in hand the development of the system indicated by its name from Cape Cod to the Gulf, opened to-day with delegates from all the States along the Atlantic coast. Congressman Bingham, of Pennsylvania, presided at the morning session, and Congressman J. Van Vleet, of New York, presided at the afternoon session.

Senator Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, who is vice president of the United States Inland Waterways Commission, was the principal speaker. He stated that the question of the development of the inland waterways of the country is the greatest problem before the people. It is, he said, the key to the transportation congestion which is shown by the inefficiency of the railroads and retarding the growth of the country.

He advocated the calling of a national conference made up of the governors of all the States in the Union, heads of transportation systems, and industrial leaders who are dependent upon transportation systems, and in which the whole matter should be placed under the care of a department of the government created for the purpose, which department should also have charge of the railroads.

It was indicated at the conference to-day that when the commission appointed by President Roosevelt makes its report to Congress, it will recommend that this work of development of inland waterways be financed by the issuance of bonds guaranteed by the government.

Changing Friends a Pastime.

From the Lady's Pictorial.

Great variety is introduced into life by practicing the art of dropping your friends. There are folks in London who change their friends each season. These "dear friends"—whom they meet in public and calumniate in private—never have a good word for each other.

Contrast Is Evident.

You return from the country and, without being a philosopher, a statistician, or a moralist, a comparison of the sights that you had yesterday with those that meet you to-day in the great city will convince you of the growth of all kinds of moral evil.

Tariff a Menace to Babies.

From the Melbourne Argus.

The important business of rearing healthy children is seriously discouraged by the Lyne tariff. Infants and invalid foods have previously been duty free, but now there has been imposed 20 per cent duty on the food, 20 per cent duty on the cases, and 10 shillings per dozen on the bottles.

Kept the Barber Busy.

Mrs. Catherine Sherwood, at the age of fifty-two, gave birth to triplets, who all became sea captains, and all lived to be more than seventy years old, says Dr. F. Powers in the Medical Record.

While in Charleston, S. C., the triplets all went into the same barber shop one day to get shaved, one in the early morning, one at noon, and the other in the evening, and the barber said he never saw a man whose beard grew so rapidly as that man's did.

Indictments Expected in Borough Bank Examination.

New York, Nov. 19.—The grand jury investigation into the affairs of the Borough Bank, in Brooklyn, was continued to-day. Nine witnesses were examined, and at the close of the session Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Elder, who has charge of the grand jury proceedings, sent for Chief Clerk Robert H. Walkley, who frames all indictments for the Brooklyn office.

It is believed one of the charges being investigated is for grand larceny. This charge grows out of the transaction in which it is alleged $145,000 of the Borough Bank funds were used to complete the $1,000,000 of capital and subscribed surplus of the International Trust Company, which the company had to have paid in before it could open for business. Indictments are expected against two.

PLAN PINEHURST TOURNEY

Attractive Programme of Golf Arranged for the Winter Season.

Fall Events Will Open on November 28 and Then Will Come Holiday Matches with Best Golfers.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 19.—The local Country Club has outlined a record-breaking tournament season, golf, as in the past, maintaining its supremacy, the demands of the vast army which annually assembles here to enjoy the game making a third course necessary, now giving three courses, two eighteen-hole championship length, and one nine-hole-an equipment unequalled in the world and an object lesson to the world as a demonstration of the possibilities and popularity of the game. The second eighteen-hole course, laid out last season, is in the pink of condition and bids fair to vie with the old course in popularity, and the new nine-hole course will be opened during the present season.

Interest in the season's programme of golf events centers about four contests of national importance, the first of which will be the fifth annual midwinter tournament, January 13, 14, and 15, six divisions qualifying, and immediately preceding the annual advertising men's tournament, which finishes out the week. Next in order is the fourth annual St. Valentine's tournament, February 13, 14, and 15, five divisions qualifying, followed by the fourth annual spring tournament, March 18, 19, 20, and 21, six divisions qualifying; the season's programme concluding and interest culminating in the eighth annual United North and South amateur championship, which will fill in the time from March 25 to April 4, inclusive, six divisions qualifying, and which will include men's, women's and open events.

The Pinehurst system of qualification, tested for the first time in the midwinter tournament last season, in which divisions are made up from the scores and handicaps of entrants, and the best sixteen scores in each division qualifying will again be used at the midwinter tournament, and in connection there will be a consolation division for those who fail to qualify. The outcome of last year's test aroused general interest, and while the results were satisfactory, the tournament committee did not think that it was quite prepared, as a result of the test, to adopt the system for all important tournaments.

The season's golf tournaments will begin next week, Thursday, November 28, with the annual autumn tournament, a sterling cup being offered for the best qualification score and two sixteen qualifying for the president's and secretary's cups, which will be awarded to division winners. The annual holiday week tournament begins December 27, a sterling cup being offered for the best qualification score, and three sixteen qualifying for the president's, secretary's, and treasurer's cups, which will be awarded to the division winners.
